Learn the basics of the "Universal Blueprint Decision-Making Formula for Teaching Success." This interactive overview will introduce you to a revolutionary decision-making system for "reading" children and situations so you can prevent or find an individualized solution to any child behavior challenge. Based on 17 years of research, development and field testing with thousands of parents and professionals, this proven-effective system is based on time-tested parenting principles and practical language and action tools you can use with any child.

Objectives: By the end of this information-packed program, participants will know how to:

- Ask three questions and take five steps to an individualized effective response to any challenge
- Identify and work with people who have different parenting (and teaching) styles
- The best practical language and action tools for:
 - Building children's self-esteem without creating praise junkies
 - Having children to do something the first time you ask
 - Getting cooperation without power struggles, bribes, stickers or incentives
 - Fostering responsibility and independence
 - Teaching children how to resolve their own peer conflicts and dramas
 - Understand why kids misbehave and what you can do to prevent and stop it
 - Use respectful, effective discipline techniques that promote self-discipline in children
